CLAIMS

What is claimed is:

500 / A1 2

6

4

2

A method of displaying an image embedded in a web page, comprising the steps of:

determining the physical size of the display and the current resolution of the display;

determining the desired physical size of the image to be displayed; displaying the image at the desired physical size.

**,

2. A system for displaying an image embedded in a web page, comprising:

an image stored in the system, the image having a desired physical size;

a display having a physical display area and a current resolution;

a processing system, the processing system comprising at least one processor, wherein the processing system scales the image, using the physical display area and the current resolution, such that the image is displayed at the desired physical size.

A system for displaying an image embedded in a web page, comprising:

means for determining the physical size and current resolution of the display;

means for reading an image to be displayed;

means for displaying the image at a desired size.

4

6

2

4

6

8

4 A method of displaying an image embedded in a web page, comprising the steps
2 of:

determining the desired length, in one dimension, of a browser window to be used to display the image;

scaling the image, using a constant aspect ratio, to match the desired length; displaying the image

A system for displaying an image embedded in a web page, comprising:

an image, the image having a desired size relative to the size of a browser used to display the image;

a display having a current resolution;

a processing system, the processing system comprising at least one processor, wherein the processing system scales the image, using the current resolution, such that the image is displayed, using a constant aspect ratio, at the desired relative

ADD